

An Averted Conflagration.

What might have developed into a disastrous fire was narrowly averted Monday morning by the presence of mind and quick action of A. T. Roberts, manager of the Carrizozo livery stable. In the early hours of the forenoon while in his office he detected a smell of fire. He quickly took up the scent, which led him to one of the stalls, where he found a pretty good-sized fire well under way. He immediately shouted the alarm and called for water, and then proceeded to dump hay by the bale on the burning mass, which smothered the flames, and kept the fire from spreading to the woodwork, by which time a number of men arrived with buckets of water, drawn from a well, and completely extinguished it. Although the fire was a small one, it would have quickly developed into a large blaze, and perhaps wiped out a large portion of the town. The fire is supposed to have originated by someone carelessly dropping a partly-smoked cigarette in the stall, which ignited the loose hay on the floor. Mr. Roberts says he would advise anyone entering his stable in the future with a lighted cigar or cigarette to take the precaution of taking out life insurance, as something is liable to happen. One fire in two years is about all the town of Carrizozo can stand.

A NEW BLACKSMITH SHOP.

J. K. Martin, of San Angelo, Tex., recently established a blacksmith shop on 2nd and El Paso Ave. and is prepared to do all kinds of blacksmithing and wood work. Mr. Martin is a blacksmith of many years experience, guarantees his work and a trial will convince any one of his ability to perform his work in a satisfactory manner. He makes a specialty of horse shoeing, and his long experience in that line enables him to fully meet all requirements. A share of the patronage of Carrizozo and surrounding country is solicited, and fair work and square dealing is guaranteed to every customer.

The happy countenance of our popular county treasurer, John M. Penfield, was in evidence on Sunday. He remained in Carrizozo until Tuesday morning when he returned to Lincoln. Some of his friends thought his mission here was politics; but, while confessing a warm friendship for the man who handles the county's cash, we are compelled to admit that he never mentioned such a subject to us. It was later reported that he came to see a very dear friend, and that the subject of discussion between them was far older than politics.
